Raleigh, North Carolina - Today, North Carolina Families First launched a multimillion-dollar statewide media campaign on television, through digital, and mail. This campaign aims to tell voters the truth about Republican Supreme Court Candidate Sarah Stevens and her history of protecting predators.

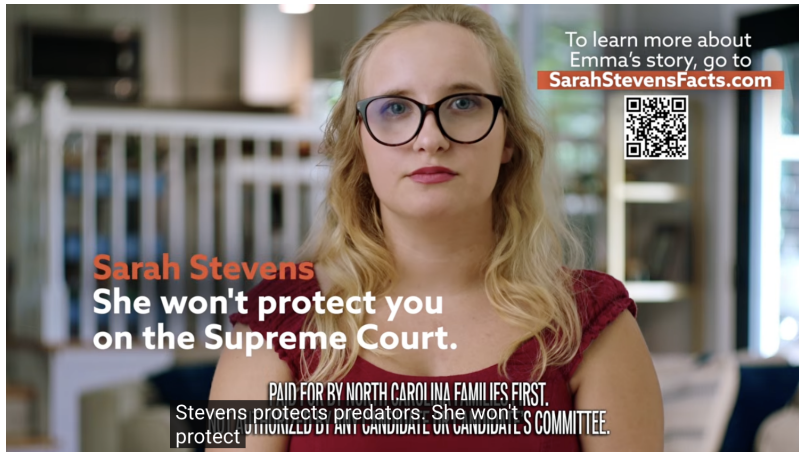

The campaign features personal stories from child sexual abuse survivors and members of law enforcement who are bravely speaking out on Stevens' record. Stevens chose to defend a pedophile in court, fought against tougher rules for child predators and abusers, and campaigned with a convicted child molester. For more information, please visit SarahStevensFacts.Com.

Katie T. shares her experience in the ad "Horrible," and asked Stevens personally to support increased protections for survivors of abuse. "I shared my experience about Sarah Stevens because I don't want any other survivor to feel overlooked and diminished the way I did," said Katie T., a survivor and advocate. "Over the years, she's made it very clear how she feels about those who have been terribly harmed. Instead of a listening and sympathetic ear, Stevens chose to shuffle papers and turned her back on me. Stevens doesn't belong on North Carolina's highest court."

Katie and Emma are available to speak with members of the press upon request. Contact info@ncfamiliesfirst.org.
